

SARAH LOSINGER

2023 Each Moment Matters Luncheon Honoree

Sarah Losinger discovered her passion for serving others at a young age, inspired by her parents' active involvement in volunteering in their local community. Her family's foundation, the John R. McCune Charitable Trust, boasts a rich legacy of providing extensive support to a diverse array of organizations and projects. With a commitment to inclusivity and comprehensive decision-making, every member of the family board actively contributes to the process, fostering a collective and deliberate approach towards giving. Her family's dedication to giving back left a lasting impact on her, instilling in her a deep desire to make a positive difference. Sarah's own interests gravitate towards creative and collaborative endeavors, while also maintaining a broad perspective that allows her to address needs in science, education, the arts, social justice and community service.

While her upbringing laid the foundation for her commitment to service, Sarah has built her own legacy as a volunteer and philanthropist in Dallas. She actively participates in multiple boards and committees throughout the city, but her true passion lies in working directly with children on a one-on-one basis. Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, she volunteered with WHO (We Help Others), dedicating her time to activities at Dallas Independent School District (DISD) elementary schools in East Dallas. Sarah values anonymity in her philanthropic efforts, mirroring her family foundation's approach. She derives immense satisfaction from collaborating with other funders on worthy projects, recognizing the power of working together. Such collaborations and partnerships serve as strong motivators for her continued dedication.

Currently, Sarah is very excited about her work with For Oak Cliff. Serving on their board, she is deeply passionate about the organization's mission to reshape the narrative within the Oak Cliff community. She deeply respects their leadership, and she takes pleasure in inviting new friends to learn about the organization and offering them the opportunity to support the mission. She emphasizes that the collaborative spirit, diversity and collective progress she witnesses in For Oak Cliff is the same spirit and values that make her proud to live in the city of Dallas.
